George Hayes, a mule spinner employed at the Marland Mills, had a narrow escape from death Wednesday morning. While working over the machinery, his shirt caught in a gear and he was thrown upon a mule and terribly cut. A ragged wound, 12 inches long, was torn in his abdomen. He was taken to Dr. Leitch's office where his wounds were dressed. Had the cut been deeper, Hayes would have been killed without doubt; as it is he will probably recover.

Bicyclists of this vicinity will be pleased to know that an ideal retreat can be found near the West Parish church in the shape of a refreshment tent, in which home made ice cream, cake, sandwiches and lunches are served. Everything is neat and new, and all who patronize the retreat are sure of hospital treatment.

One of the most enjoyable entertainments given this season was held at the Scaries estate in Methuen on Monday evening. The chapel choir under the direction of Mr. Reuben Merrill gave choice selections and Mrs. Furby sang several solos with telling effect. Not the least important part of the entertainment was Mr. Nat. Pride's playing on the organ. Mr. Merrill can well be congratulated on the success of the musical programme. Fortunate indeed were those who partook of the supper, which was all that could be expected.

A banquet was tendered last evening by A. H. L. Bemis to the victorious Phillips Academy baseball team. A. E. Stearns was toast master. The following responded to toasts: Capt. L. D. William Saunders of Springfield street, South Lawrence, had a narrow escape from death on Essex street last night. He was coasting down the hill on his bicycle and lost control of his wheel. He collided with one of Ira Hill's depot carriages and was thrown head first through a plate glass window. His head was cut badly in several places and a deep gash was made in his cheek. Saunders was removed to Dr. Abbott's office where his wounds were dressed. He was then taken to Lawrence by Chief of Police Mears. Many stitches will have to be taken in the cuts.

Theophilus Muise, the tailor in Barnard's Court, lost a valuable gold watch yesterday afternoon. The timepiece was probably stolen by a clever thief, who entered Mr. Muise's shop and asked to have two buttons sewed on his trousers. The stranger walked around the store a little after the work had been completed and then went out. Soon after he had gone Mr. Muise discovered that his watch was gone. He immediately notified the police. The man was tall and slim, and was dressed in a dark coat and hat, and light trousers. His clothes were good and there was nothing about his general appearance to cause anyone to be suspicious of him.

Spicket Falls lodge, A. O. U. W. of Methuen at the regular meeting Tuesday evening tendered a reception to Edward Howarth of this town, who for the fifth consecutive year has been appointed district deputy grand workman of the lodge. Deputy Howarth was accompanied by a delegation of about 20 members of Lincoln lodge. The evening was most enjoyably spent and at the conclusion of the meeting ice cream and cake were served and cigars were passed. Mr. Howarth is a popular member of the order, and members of the Methuen lodge expressed gratification at his reappointment as deputy.

Rev. W. J. Long, who was called to the North Avenue Congregational Church, Cambridge, was rejected by the ecclesiastical council, Tuesday, by a vote of 32 to 20, the reason being that the candidate was too liberal and pronounced in his views and beliefs. Mr. Long told a reporter that he had been a Congregationalist all his life. He had no criticism to make over the action of the council. They had simply disagreed. He believed that the council acted conscientiously. He had been treated kindly. The council was more conservative in the statement of belief, while he was more liberal. In the old statement of the creed, formulated in 1858, there were one or two points which he no longer believed. One of the technical points which arose was that he stated his disbelief in eternal punishment. Rev. Mr. Long will very likely continue to supply the pulpit for the present.

Narrow Escape.

Miss Bessie Crockett met with an accident last Thursday night which might have proved fatal. As she was returning home about half past eight, with Miss Mary Harken and Miss Cole an electric car was coming from Lawrence. She went into the road to see if the car was coming this way and as she turned to leave the road a horse kicked her and dragged her about 30 feet, leaving her about two feet from the track.

Had she been thrown a little farther she would have been killed.

The was picked up by two young men from Lawrence, whose names are unknown and removed to her home. Miss Crockett received a few bruises on the body but luckily was not seriously injured.

The parties in the team are unknown, as they drove quickly away, without inquiring as to the extent of Miss Crockett's injuries.

Bad management keeps more people in poor circumstances than any other cause. To be successful one must look ahead so that when a favorable opportunity presents itself he is ready to take advantage of it. A little forethought will also save much expense and valuable time. A prudent and careful man will keep a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy in the house, the slightest fellow will wait until necessity compels it and then ruin his best horse going for a doctor and have a big doctor bill to pay, besides, one pays out 25 cents, the other is out a hundred dollars and then wonders why his neighbor is getting richer while he is getting poorer. EVENTS IN NEW YORK.

"The Little Minister" ends a long and brilliant run. Some lessons of this play. Col. Astor's Battery leaves for Manila amid great enthusiasm.

[SPECIAL TO THE TOWNSMAN.]
New York, June 15, 1898.

There are many points of interest in the long run of Mr. Barrie's "Little Minister" which closed for the season with its last and brilliant performance at the Empire Theatre Tuesday night. Critics of the drama have found no end of suggestion in its prosperity and brilliant record. The play has attended this charming drama. It is hardly necessary to say that the play has enjoyed one of the most continuous runs on record in the city. The most significant feature of its extraordinary success was not the numerical length of time it ran, but the receipts of the box office. It is the character of the play which commands special attention to its remarkable achievement. Here was a life of drama, sweet and wholesome in every particular, without a hint of suggestion of coarseness or vulgarity. Ample with its delicacy and refinement, with a capital delineation of Scotch character with the rich humor peculiar to the Gaelic nature. The plot, ingenious in its conception, was splendidly acted, its wholesomeness and skillfulness meeting perfect interpretation in the girlish grace and artistic portrayal of Miss Maude Adams as Lady Bobby.

The three hundredth and closing performance celebrated last night at the Empire Theatre. The play was attended by appreciative enthusiasm. Before the curtain fell after the act the stage had been banked with exquisite floral tokens, and the immense audience had stormed the actors with applause. Time after time, the applause was called out to the footlights, and the scene was one of remarkable enthusiasm. To have played for a hundred nights is a long and severe trial upon a hard-working actor or actress, and Miss Adams will take a long and well earned rest in a little cottage far up among the hills of the Empire State. It has been proven beyond all question that the intelligent public prefer clean and clever drama to that which is tawdry or risqué. "The Little Minister" has been the greatest success of the past dramatic season.

Great as was the enthusiasm in the city when the State troops left for the South, it hardly exceeded that attendant upon the departure of the Astor Battery for Manila on Monday. Mingled with the hearty cheers was considerable jollity too, because the experiences of the company since it started for camp a few days ago, have been somewhat of an open bouffanture. The Battery which consists of 105 men has been in camp since Monday last. The heroes marched out of Camp which was located on the Astor estate near Pelham. It was a march of 15 miles and the day was brought hot. Fifteen of the soldiers succumbed from the heat on the way. Those who wearily plodded on to their destination, reached camp with feet so badly blistered that they could hardly walk next morning. The camp was promptly named "Camp Blister". The Battery received orders on Sunday to be in instant readiness to move for Manila. Monday afternoon the soldiers broke camp and proceeded to the Pennsylvania station in Jersey City by railway train and transfer steamer. At Jersey City a special train was in waiting to take the Battery to San Francisco. The battery goes fully equipped with modern appliances. It contains among other things, six Hotchkiss guns of the latest type. It is the first military company to leave New York with full and up-to-date equipment.

Hundreds of relatives and friends, chiefly members of the fair sex, gathered at the Pennsylvania station to say good-by to the boys. Tears and kisses were mingled in great profusion and several of the young women held the soldiers so tightly in their arms that nearly a dozen were left behind when the train pulled out. The cars halted once in the railway yards, however, and after a long search the recruits were rounded up, bundled aboard and the train finally left on its long journey with every man aboard. The Astor Battery expects to arrive in San Francisco on Sunday, and will leave for the Philippines by the earliest transport steamer leaving after that date. The soldiers are all anxious to go. They believe almost anything is preferable to blistered feet in New York.

ANIMALS UNDERGROUND.

Burrowing as it is performed by Various Species of Mammals.

Ventilation, or rather the want of it, must be a difficulty in the underground life of almost all mammals. The rabbit and the rat secure a current of air by forming a bolt hole in connection with their system of passages, but the fox, the badger and many of the field voles and mice seem indifferent to any such precaution. There is no doubt that whatever gave the first impulse to burrow, many animals look upon this, to us most unpleasant exertion, as a form of actual amusement. It also confers a right of property.

Prairie dogs constantly set to work to dig holes merely for the love of the thing. If they cannot have a suitable place to exercise their talent in, they will gnaw into boxes or chests of drawers, and there burrow, to the great detriment of the clothes therein contained. In an enclosed prairie dog town they have been known to mine until the superincumbent earth collapsed and buried the greater number. A young prairie dog, let loose in a small, gravel floored house, instantly dug a hole large enough to sit in, turned round in it and bit the first person who attempted to touch him. Property gave him courage, for before he had been as meek as a mouse.

It is noticeable that the two weakest and least numerous of our mice, the house mouse and the harvest mouse, do not burrow, but make nests, and that these do not multiply or maintain their numbers like the burrowing mice and voles. But the fact that there are members of very closely allied species, some of which do burrow, while others do not, seems to indicate that the habit is an acquired one.

In this connection it is worth noting that many animals which do not burrow at other times form burrows in times of conceal and protect their young. If they do burrow, make a kind of a more elaborate chamber among these nursery burrows. In the case of the dog, the fox and sandpiper, the kingfisher and the shrew, the burrowed litters never do so long as the mother is allowed to stay. In time she will work this hole into the stack and keep the young at the far end, while she remains in the entrance. Vixens either dig a clean burrow for their young, or, if a natural habit, or, at least, one acquired previously to the birth of the young, they will dig a hole in the side of a hill, or in the side of a stack, and in time she will work this hole into the stack and keep the young at the far end, while she remains in the entrance. Vixens either dig a clean burrow for their young, or, if a natural habit, or, at least, one acquired previously to the birth of the young, they will dig a hole in the side of a hill, or in the side of a stack, and in time she will work this hole into the stack and keep the young at the far end, while she remains in the entrance. And this argument keeps more people in the habit of looking for other causes than the one which one must look ahead to find. A favorable opportunity presents itself, and a little forethought will also save many a mouse and valuable time. A prudent and careful man will keep a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy in the house, the children will wait until necessity compels them to have a big doctor bill to pay. ENGLAND'S PREMIER.

WHAT IT MEANS TO BE THE BRITISH PRIME MINISTER.

Nowhere Else in the World Is There Any Position at Once So Powerful and So Anomalous—The Office Is Without Legal Foundation.

Nowhere else in the world is there any position at once so powerful and so anomalous. So long as he remains prime minister the premier of the United Kingdom is possessed of more real power than any single individual, unless it be the czar or the president of the United States.

Yet, great as is the power of prime minister, the office has no foundation of law. The prime minister is quite unknown to the law as is the cabinet. If a legal pedant, blind to all facts not in the statutes or the textbooks of the common law, were asked to define the office of prime minister and to describe the cabinet, he would be utterly at a loss.

In theory the prime minister is only a privy councillor at the head of a department of state who is specially in the sovereign's confidence and who usually presides at an informal gathering of certain of the privy councillors who happen to hold offices of state—a gathering which is called the cabinet. That is the furthest which the legal pedant of our thought would dare to go. Yet, of course, the prime minister is, in fact, far more than the mere chairman of the cabinet.

The cabinet, no doubt, has a great deal of power, but even if it were true once it is certainly not true now that England is governed by a committee of 15 or 16 persons.

The prime minister, as a rule, makes his cabinet. He is commissioned by the queen to form a cabinet, because he is the man whom she considers to possess the confidence of a majority of the house of commons. He forms his cabinet by asking certain members of the two houses to hold the great offices of state. He might do this in one day and without consulting any one.

As a matter of fact, what usually happens is this: As soon as the commission to form a government has been received, the prime minister takes into his confidence the two or three who will hold the chief offices, and they talk together over the other names. When a man is decided upon, he, as a rule, joins the conclave and helps to consult as to men and places, and so the cabinet gradually evolves itself. No doubt, as generally happens in this world, the prime minister's choice is never really free.

Certain men must be in the cabinet, whatever happens, and hence they may be said not to be chosen by the premier, but to be ministers in their own right. In spite, however, of this, the fact that they are asked to serve by the premier makes them feel his superiority. When the cabinet is made, the theory of the unwritten constitution is that the cabinet governs. In reality it seldom does anything of the kind.

Each cabinet minister has very great power in his own department, but the cabinet as a cabinet can do little. Since, however, it knows everything that is going on it can exercise a great deal of indirect power. The previous knowledge that the majority of the cabinet would like or dislike a particular policy has a great influence, but still the cabinet does not rule. The prime minister summons, presides over and largely controls the cabinet meetings. If a vacancy occurs, he fills it up, and so can promote from the lower to the higher offices.

Then he can and does confer with his colleagues in regard to the business of their departments, and so has a hold upon the whole machine of government. Sir Robert Peel, saw every member of his cabinet separately every day. Again, if there be a difference between two other members of the government, the premier decides. If there be an irreconcilable difference between himself and a minister, it is the minister and not the premier who resigns.

Lastly, the prime minister can, by resigning himself, dissolve the whole ministry. These things, small in themselves, taken together, make the prime minister's position what it is. He makes and can unmake a cabinet. He presides over it, and he has the right to advise in regard to every department, though this right is of course seldom exercised, and he has secured to him beforehand the support of the rank and file or of any cabinet if it comes to a struggle between him and a colleague, because the rank and file know that if the premier is beaten he has it in his power to upset the whole machine of government.

Hence the voices of those who want to keep in office are always found on the side of the premier.—Pearson's Weekly.

A Russian Miracle.

An iconoclast at a Russian convent has been hoist with his own petard in a significant way. An infernal machine was set near a picture of the Virgin Mary, in a convent at Kursk, the picture having a reputation for working miraculous cures. The machine exploded in due time and wrecked the surroundings, demolishing a cast iron screen round the picture, damaging doors and breaking down a wall, but the picture itself escaped unharmed. If there ever was any doubt among the faithful at the Shumenki convent as to the wonder working properties of their holy picture, it will be dispelled by this.—St. James Gazette.

New York has a shop in which Bibles and run are sold side by side. The place is at the foot of Washington street, not far from the Syrian colony, and its patrons include Syrians, Armenians, Turks, Russians and Irish longshoremen. The Bibles, together with other books of a religious character, are kept in a case at the end of the bar.

PARRIED A CHALLENGE.

How a Clever Young Lawyer Got Out of Fighting a Duel.

A good story is told of a young lawyer in this city. One of his first cases was a claim against a creole gentleman, who agreed to pay a certain amount each month. The first of the first month after the agreement came and went, the creole gentleman forgetting to remit. The young lawyer waited several days, and then wrote a letter. It had one virtue—it was emphatic. It was not so polite as it was emphatic, however, and within an hour of its delivery to the creole gentleman two of his friends called upon the young lawyer with a message, which, freely translated, meant "You have the privilege of naming the weapons."

For a moment the young lawyer was genuinely alarmed. He had heard that the creole gentleman was a dead shot and equally fatal with the sword. He wanted to avoid trouble, but did not feel that the circumstances justified him in pleading professional privilege when he had virtually called a man a beat. Then there came to his mind that he had somewhere read that a gentleman could not grant a duel to any one who owed him money, and he haughtily said so to his callers.

They instantly withdrew. An hour passed. It was an hour of anguish to the young lawyer. Then there came again the cards of the two friends of the offended creole gentleman. A minute later they were in the lawyer's office, and he had written out a receipt for the full amount of the claim against the creole gentleman.

"And now, sir," said the chief second of the creole gentleman to the young lawyer, "what is your answer to our principal's demand?"

"My answer, gentlemen, is this: I formed the hasty conclusion that your principal did not intend to pay what I considered a just debt, and I so expressed myself. He has paid the debt. I recognize the seriousness of my judgment of him as a gentleman, and I beg to assure him, through you, that I will willingly offer him any apology which a gentleman may see fit to require of a gentleman."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

THE PRIVATE SOLDIER.

Modest Heroes to Whom the Nation Is Forever Indebted.

If the language of panegyric may be appropriately used when referring to the leaders in statesmanship and war whose genius directed the movements of the citizen soldiery who gave their lives, it need be, that the nation might be saved, what language can be used, rich as is our vocabulary, that shall give due praise to the humble heroes who slumber in forgotten and neglected graves, whose ashes are mingled with the southern soil "to mix forever with the elements," and also those who happily survived the mighty conflict? As we look upon their wan faces, their empty sleeves, their bent forms, their gray locks and their unsteady steps we cannot forget what they suffered and endured, or possibly compute the debt of the nation's gratitude toward them. What rhapsody of words could be employed that would do full justice to these modest heroes, who did not receive the rich rewards and emoluments of the fortunate ones who shone conspicuously in military trappings and "the pride, pomp and circumstance of glorious war?"

There's not to reason why:
There's but to do and die.

Would that the government had the gold of Midas and could fairly distribute it among these battle-scarred veterans, who are many of them steeped to the very lips in poverty, prematurely old and gray, waiting, only waiting, for the call of the angel of death! As we look at our banner of beauty and glory, as we give the handshake to our comrades and bereaved ones who never saw their beloved soldier boys come back, we are almost overwhelmed with the memories of many fields, sweet memories alike of valor and friendship, and memories of fraternal strife, tender memories of fallen brothers and sons, whose dying eyes looked last upon the nation's flag; grand memories of heroic virtues sublime by grief, exalted memories of the great and final victories of our country, our Union and the righteous cause, thankful memories of the deliverance wrought out by human nature itself unexampled by any former achievements of arms; immortal memories, with immortal honors blended, cluster about these men, make this day commemorative of their achievements and weave themselves along the warp and woof of our glorious banner.

Oh, soldiers, to your honest rest,
Your truth and valor bearing!
The bravest are the tenderest,
The loving are the daring.
—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Lived to Be Doctored.

When the new boy got into the schoolroom, he was of course pestered with numerous questions by the other scholars as to his name, his parents' profession, the amount of his pocket money and various other matters about which boys are curious.

"Who's your family doctor?" asked a big lad.

"Ain't got none," was the prompt if ungrammatical reply.

"How jolly!" responded the questioner. "Why, you don't have no medicine to take."

"Don't I!" was the sarcastic reply. "That's all you know. Why, my father's a homeopath, mother's an allopath, my sister Maggie's joined the ladies' ambulance corps, grandfather believes in massage, my Uncle Sandy's a horse doctor, and"—with a pathetic sigh—"they all of them experiment on me."

That boy got the sympathy he desired.—Strand Magazine.

Knew It All.

"By the way, Tom," said Mr. Manning to his son, fresh from academic groves, "I have been thinking the matter over, and I have come to the conclusion that I had better go to school somewhere and that you had better take the business and run it. It cannot help improving under the eye of one so gifted as yourself."—Boston Transcript.

"I was a pale, puny, sickly woman, weighing less than 90 pounds. I was never well. I had female troubles and bad throat trouble. I came across an advertisement of Hood's Sarsaparilla and had faith in the medicine at once. I began taking it and soon felt better. I kept on until I was cured. ROBBING GOLD SHIPS

A DIFFICULT TASK OFTEN SUCCESSFULLY ACCOMPLISHED.

The Australian Coast the Favorite Field For These Daring Feats of Burglary. Some of the More Notable Thefts That Have Taken Place.

Several times in each year Australian newspapers announce the departure to England or San Francisco of vessels carrying hundreds of thousands of pounds value in gold. In 1896 the three colonies of Queensland, New South Wales and Victoria sent away over $40,000,000.

It is not a matter of surprise that such announcements excite the cupidity of a section of the community or that from time to time attempts are made to surreptitiously lay hands on some portion of the seductive treasure.

Robbing a ship's safe on the Australian coast is now conducted with the same silent and thoughtful deliberation as is the solving of a difficult chess problem. The first thing the ruder sets his heart upon is how to get the key. The theory, and indeed the general practice, is that the captain checks the boxes as they are stored in the bullion room, looks the door when the transaction is complete, and, sleeping or waking, carries the key in a leather pouch around his neck till he unlocks the door at the end of the voyage.

But theory and practice are often set aside. In the Tararua case, at Melbourne, in 1890, when $30,000 worth of gold bars were stolen, the police discovered that two keys, either of which opened the bullion room, used to hang against the wall in the public bar. It was also discovered that one of these keys mysteriously disappeared 12 months before the robbery, and that no serious investigation was then made into the loss, nor was any alteration made in the lock of the bullion room.

This Tararua was running between New Zealand and Australia and had shipped boxes of gold at various ports. Altogether she was supposed to carry 11 boxes. On arriving at Melbourne it was found that one of these boxes was missing. Examination showed that some one had simply opened the door with a key, extracted the box and looked the door again.

The robbery from the Iberia, which left Melbourne for London in March, 1889, is supposed to have been also effected by means of a key surreptitiously procured. In that case the robbery was not discovered till the arrival of the vessel in London.

The robbery from the China developed in a remarkable way. Here the Oriental bank in Sydney placed the gold on board a coast steamer called the Avoca. At Melbourne the gold was transhipped to the China. The China touched at Adelaide and other ports, but it was only at Galle the discovery of the robbery was made. Detectives operated on all the ports simultaneously, but nowhere could a clew be found. The amount missing was the usual $30,000.

In 1878 a man named Weiberg, who had been a carpenter on the China, took up a selection in the interior of Victoria. Before setting down he married a Melbourne barmaid and appears to have confided to her some shady particulars of his past history. The Samson and Delilah story was in part repeated, and the public laid themselves out to watch Weiberg. The upshot was the arrest of the man as the safe rider of the China.

One thousand sovereigns were found in a tin of fat stored away by him in Melbourne. In his hut was discovered a wooden plane stuffed with gold. The wood was hollowed out and the gold dropped in. In the hut was also discovered a bar of soap containing 300 sovereigns.

He told the detectives that he had 1,800 sovereigns concealed on his selection and offered if they accompanied him to point out where the booty lay. As may be surmised, he fooled the police into a wild, thick timbered region, took them suddenly off guard and made his escape. He was recaptured, however, some months later.

The mystery of the Iberia was cleared up in a still more singular manner. One day two boys playing at Williamstown saw a mouse run into a hole under the platform of the railway pier. One of the boys started to dig the mouse out with a stick and to his surprise unearthed a mass of sovereigns. The police were informed, and before the day was out 3,742 sovereigns were recovered.

The recovery of the Aredale gold was more satisfactory as far as amount is concerned. For nearly two years the police labored in vain. The mystery might never have been cleared up but for an accident. A wharf lumper fishing in Nelson pier, where the Aredale had been berthed, hooked on to something which excited his curiosity. Obtaining assistance, the lumper succeeded in bringing to the surface the missing box, with its treasure intact. The robber had evidently sunk the box, intending to return for it when opportunity offered.—Chambers' Journal.

SCARED THE RED MEN

HOW A CROWD OF CATTLEMEN BROKE UP A GHOST DANCE.

A Roman Candle Bombardment That Stampeded the Three Hundred Braves and Started Them on a Run That Lasted into the Next Day.

"We never called Rooney by the name of Jack, although his Christian name was John, and in the cattle country they was few men named after Christ's chief disciple who was not known as Jack. We always called him John Rooney. The last I ever heard of him he was living up in Nebraska, not far from Ogallala, on the south fork of the Platte, just after the stream leaves the Colorado line."

Thus discoursed a former cattleman, who is now pursuing a peaceful and commonplace life in Kansas City, the other evening. He was talking of life on the big cattle range in the days when the fame of Dodge City, Abilene, Hayes City and Ellis was on the wane as tough towns of Kansas and their upbuilding as law abiding communities had begun.

"In them days," he continued, "our openings for fun was less frequent than national holidays are at present. It was mostly hard riding, and lots of it. It gives us all a sorter yearning to bust loose the cinches and raise hell at the first opportunity, and sometimes the way we did it was as unique as they was startling. The time I speak of in this pertiokler yarn we was grazing a big bunch of cattle, mostly long horns, in the Cherokee strip, along the north fork of the Canadian river, within a day's riding of old Fort Supply. The Omegas and some other tribes used to come in there for their green corn and harvest dances and have highfalootin ole times in general. We all remarks this and speaks of it sorter scornful because we did not like Indians much no-how. When I say this, I don't mean that Rooney was the one to put the quirt to the Indians. He was overquirt on the subject. He generally was peaceful and calm. He was a thinker, Rooney was, and with some schooling and a little politics would have been a great man in the city I low."

"About this time the camp begins to get short on grub, and some four or five of the boys was sent to Medicine Lodge, across the Kansas line, with wagons to bring back a supply of necessaries. Kansas was not a prohibition state then, and you could get most any kind of stimulant in Medicine Lodge—that is to say, they had rye and Bourbon whiskey, and I suppose they also had beer.

"As I was saying, you could get about any kind of liquor you wanted in Medicine Lodge, and so we kept pretty well wet. Rooney here displayed his sagacity. While we all had forgotten all about them pesky Indians he comes in one day we was to leave and puts in to the wagon about 20 of them big roman candles that shoot ten times, you know, each shot a big ball of yellow, red or bluish flame.

"What you going to do with them Fourth of July fixings now? we all asks, seeing as how it was getting closer to Thanksgiving."

"Never you mind that," said John, kinder winking his eye southeast.

"So we all was mighty curious during the trip back to the Canadian, but says nothing. A few days after we gets back them Indians begins gathering for a annual feast of some kind, and then one night they prepares for one of them dances. Of course, all of the boys what could be spared wanted off to see the monkey business of them redskins. Then John Rooney, he called a council of war and unfolded the secret of them roman candles what he bought at Medicine Lodge. He tells all the boys, some 15 in number, to stay with him, and leads the way to the timber, where the ghost dance was going on. We all takes one of them roman candles and no one speaks a word or coughs or makes any loud signs.

"When them 600 braves was tearing up the ground and yelling at the height of the dance, we gets the word from Rooney—and lights up them candles simultaneous, and they begin shooting fire and brimstone into them Indians sure enough. The boys wasn't used to shooting off them things and was about as scared themselves at the devilish hissing and the sparks, but them Indians—well, I can't say what they thought, but it was plain how they acted. Some of 'em took to the other side of the woods, some jumped straight up, a lot went for the north fork of the Canadian, running so fast 'ud take four men to see 'em. Stop then? Well, I guess not. They jumped right in and swum for dear life. They never stopped to see that the blamed fire had quit, and fellers working on the range the other side of the fork said they saw them running the next morning when they was just starting their day's riding.

"That night's devilment like to got to be all into trouble, though, and the most of us discreetly struck out for Kansas to avoid any unpleasant consequences. But laugh—say, I never laughed so in my life."—Kansas City Star.

A Good Law.

A law has just been passed in France forbidding any one to give solid food to infants under a year old without the written authority of a physician. In France, too, the long rubber tubes to feeding bottles are forbidden under heavy penalties. Everywhere people are warned not to use them, the reason being that it is impossible to keep them properly sterilized.

SARCASM BY WHISTLER.

Word Sketch Which Scored a Member of the Hogarth Club.

There is in London an institution called the Hogarth club, the membership of which is restricted to artists and litterateurs. It is something on the lines of the old Bohemian club, and both business men and American millionaires are strictly interdicted. Whistler is a member, and, of course, shines by his wit. The lines being strictly drawn there is always an effort being made by some outsider to force an entrance, and in the case of Baron Grant it met with success. Grant was a treble millionaire who had made his fortune in Turkish contracts and had invested in an Italian title on his way back to London. He was a particularly notorious person and quite the last man whom the Hogarth should have admitted. However, by dint of buying pictures he got in and proceeded to make his friends happy.

One night a big dinner was organized in his honor and Whistler invited. Though the great artist had refused, he happened into the club on the important evening and a deputation of his friends finally persuaded him into the supper room. He appeared, was wildly cheered and was at once asked to make a speech. "Gentlemen," he said, "it is on the subject of titles I should like to speak. There are several kinds of titles. Some men are born into them—these are inherited titles; others are conferred by the sovereign and have been earned by distinguished service; a few are attributes of the government, of the law or of the church. All this you know, most of you. But a title which is not inherited, nor yet bestowed for merit, nor even the sign of a position, is a barren grant."—San Francisco Wave.

Geological Deductions.

Geology was once defined by Lord Salisbury as "the science of the what might have been." Some American geologists prefer to regard it as the science of the what may be. Pictures have often been drawn of the destruction of Toronto and the devastation of southern Ontario and Quebec by a flood let loose when the great lakes are emptied owing to the continued recession of Niagara falls.

Professor G. K. Gilbert now tells us that long before this disaster is due Niagara will have been destroyed by other processes. Some slow changes of level are now taking place over the whole lake region. The eastern outlet will be closed and the lakes drained by discharging from the southern end of Lake Michigan into the basin of the Mississippi. The change in the river system will begin in about 1,000 years' time. The evidence adduced by Professor Gilbert in support of this prophecy is of great interest, although only his preliminary report has yet been published.—Spectator.

A Tough Route.

"Somewhere in the south," says Congressman Sulloway, "a bright colored boy appeared before the civil service commission to be examined for the position of letter carrier. 'How far is it from the earth to the moon?' was the first question asked by those who were to determine the young man's fitness for the place he sought. 'How far am I from the earth to de moon?' echoed the applicant. 'My Lawd, boss, if you's gwine to put me on dat route I don't want de job.' With that the young man grabbed his hat and left as though he were chased."

$50,000 for a "Gym."

The TOWNSMAN is most happy to bring out in a prominent way the important matter of a new gymnasium
for Phillips Academy.

No more fitting testimonial to Dr.
Bancroft's long and profitable conduct of Andover's big school, could be made than this gift. Its need and its value to the school is old ground over which there is no need to go again, the call now is to raise money to supply a need thoroughly appreciated by every friend
of Phillips Academy.

Already many Andover friends have shown splendid generosity in subscribing to the fund, but there is yet a large amount needed. "Many a mickle makes a muckle." Ten subscriptions of a hundred dollars each is vastly better than one of a thousand, for it shows ten times as many interested.

The TOWNSMAN hereby subscribes
one of the hundreds to this thousand,
as a slight mark of its appreciation of the splendid scholar whose past quarter century as principal has built so grandly for Phillips Academy, and who during that same period has so largely contributed to Andover's progress as one of its most eminent and useful citizens.

Nothing can be done for Phillips Academy that will do so much for the school, as to build the gymnasium and we look for Andover citizens to have a generous share in it.

Editorial Cinders.

The Exeter game was Andover's game, the New Hampshire boys being clearly outclassed after the second inning. Hooray for Andover!

Get in your petition for concrete walks. The time is at hand for their building and the "early bird is surest of the worm" in concrete walks as well as in fish bait.

By the way Supt. Chandler should not fail to have a few necessary repairs made on old concrete this year.
A small outlay in several cracked places will mean a big saving in the end.

The failure of the council to approve Rev. W. J. Long as pastor of the North Avenue Church in Cambridge is much regretted in Andover where he is so well and favorably known. It will be particularly unfortunate for the ministry if such action shall deprive it
of the services of so eminently well qualified a man as Dr. Long.

The action of this council makes it appear to be all too true that there is too much weight placed upon a man's creed, and too little upon his true
worth and ability.

We honor Dr. Long for his courage in saying what we are confident nine-tenths of that council really believed without having the courage to say so.

The Songs of '98.

The same publishers who issued the war songs which appealed to the American people in '61-'65 give promise of duplicating their record in this war. We have received from the Oliver Ditson Company, Boston, copies of three new patriotic songs which bear out this statement.

"Old Glory is Waving" we reviewed in a previous issue. All that we said of this song by Charles F. Fennell Manney at that time is substantiated by the enthusiastic reception it is having in all parts of the country.

"Our Country Forever" is another
favorite. The words are by Frank L.
Stanton, arranged to a familiar melody by Haynes-Meredith. This song was produced in Boston by Mr. Stephen Townsend, the well-known baritone, and was received with great favor. It was used by many of the leading organizations on Decoration Day with emphatic success.

"Columbia's Banner on the Sea," by William Ames Fisher, is a beautiful naval song with a vim and swing to it which captivates all who hear it. We recommend all three songs to the attention of vocalists. The title pages are works of art, being printed in patriotic colors with appropriate designs.

ANDOVER DEFEATS EXETER

Boys in Blue Out Play their New Rivals and Win the Ball Game, 8 to 2.

The Andover and Exeter nines met on the Andover campus, Saturday and Andover won by a score of 8 to 2. After the fifth inning Exeter wasn't in the game.

It was an old time contest, in which intense, yet gentlemanly rivalry was displayed by both schools. Fully 5000 persons saw the game, including the students of both academies, the young ladies of Abbot Academy, many alumni of Andover and Exeter and hundreds of townspeople and base-ball enthusiasts
from neighboring cities and towns.

Andover has played cleaner games this year than that of Saturday, but aside from the second inning the boys in blue played fast ball. The victory was won purely on its merits. Carter, Exeter's pitcher, was effective for a few innings,
but he failed to hold out, while Stephenson who has filled the box for Andover so creditably the past two years, was game to the end. Exeter's heavy batters made only three hits. Stephenson
also did effective work with the bat;
Carter did nothing.

The excellent training which the Andover nine has received from Coach Stearns, with the example of hard work which Captain Waddell had set was in evidence and on several occasions, plays which the boys have been drilled by constant practice to make, were successful and were features of the contest. There never was a prettier or sharper played double than that made by Matthews, Quincy and Chapman, and Matthews' hit in the sixth was a beautiful play. It enabled him to score later in the inning. In the seventh inning Stephenson pitched just three balls and the side was retired. H. Barker hit the first ball to Saunders, who caught it easily; Carter liked the looks of the first ball Stephenson sent to him and he popped out a fly to Ward, who captured it; Little struck nervously at the first ball and sent the sphere slowly to Matthews, who threw it to Chaoman, before the Exeter
bat had covered two-thirds of the distance to first base. In the first innings Waddell had a passed ball, but recovered
himself and threw accurately to Jones
who put out Weeks.

Every man on the Andover team contributed to the victory and the four mis-plays were more than made up by subsequent good work. Chapman put great life into his play. Quincy got his customary hit, scored twice and accepted six chances without an error. Stephenson's good work has already been described. Corse pounded out a hit that brought in a run and captured a fly in good style. Capt. Waddell sent a passing ball to Jones, who played a fine
hard, steady game, with the exception of one poor throw early in the contest.
He worked hard for victory and deserved
it when it came. Ward put up a creditable game and added a run to the score.
He made two errors but no runs resulted.
Saunders made two hits and two put-outs, one of which was a difficult catch.
Matthews played hard and well. Jones scored but failed to bat. He accepted his two chances without an error.

Exeter's two runs were scored in the second. Beach made a hit. Quincey followed with another. A ball passed Waddell who threw wild to Jones and the two Exeter men scored. Miller, Lawton and H. Barker were easy outs.
Andover scored in the second, fifth,
and sixth innings. In the second Chapman made a ground hit to Little who fumbled. He reached third on a wild pitch and scored on Ward's hit. Little fumbled Saunders' grounder and Ward reached third. He scored on a passed ball. In the fifth Matthews started in with a single and got second on a passed ball. Jones and Quincy walked to first.
Stephenson flied out to Lawton and Matthews scored. Stephenson, Chapman and Ward were the three outs. In the seventh Saunders hit safe, was advanced to second by Matthews' bunt hit and scored on Stephenson's sacrifice. Two more Andover men crossed the plate in the eighth. Quincy made a two-bagger and scored on Stephenson's single. Stephenson got to third on a passed ball and scored on W. Barker's fumble of Corse's grounder.

P. A. Boys Celebrate.

The Phillips Academy students celebrated their victory over Exeter in baseball Saturday, with a rousing demonstration. The Andover brass band furnished music for the boys to march by,
and they passed through the principal streets of the town, cheering and tooting horns. The customary visits to the professors' houses were paid.

Prof. McCurdy said in the course of his remarks to the students that Exeter reminded him of what "Fighting Bob" Evans said about the Spaniards: "They couldn't hit a d—n thing but the water and they wouldn't have hit that if the ocean had not been so large." He applied the quotation to Exeter by saying
they couldn't hit anything but the air,
and they wouldn't have hit that if pitcher Stephenson had had control of it. Principal Bancroft, Instructor Eaton and Mr.
Goodhue were also visited. All joined in praising the great work of the team,
and the untiring efforts of Coach Stearns
and Captain Waddell to develop a strong nine. Stephenson received many warm words of praise for his pitching.

The Abbot Academy girls were serenaded as is usual on such occasions and the boys made the yard echo with the old familiar cheer:

Wah! Who! Wah!

Giddy, giddy Fem Fems,

Wah! Who! Wah!

"Good Night Ladies" was sung by a mighty chorus of 600 strong, but hoarse voices, and then the students proceeded to the campus and revelled until midnight about a huge bonfire. Speeches were made by the members of the team,
Coach Stearns, the alumni, and anybody
the boys could succeed in capturing and mounting on a barrel. Coffee, the kind that has refreshed many an enthusiastic student throng on similar occasions, was supplied by Major Marland.

The boys stopped at Prof. Newton's residence on their march, and gave many rousing cheers for Wellesley girls,
who treated them to the Wellesley cheers
and songs.

Wedding.

WEDNESDAY-MORNING.

Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at St. Patrick's church, Lawrence, occurred the ceremony which united in marriage
two of South Lawrence's most popular young people, John E. Nugent and Miss Mary McManus formerly of Andover.
The ceremony was performed by Rev.
John M. Cronley.

The bride party entered the church to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march played by Miss Nellie Wholey, the bridesmaid being Miss Jennie A. McManus, sister of the bride, and the best man,
James Nugent of Lowell.

The bride was beautifully attired in a costume of white mousseline de soie
over tulle, and carried a shower bou-quet of bride's roses, while the bridesmaid looked charming in a gown of pink tulle and carried American beauty roses.

At the conclusion of the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, 201 South Broadway.
Tanner of Haverhill catered. A large number of beautiful and costly presents
testify to the popularity of the happy couple.

After a wedding trip which will include New York, Philadelphia and Washington, they will be "at home" after July 12th, at their new home on Salem Street.

Hurrah!

Owing to the generosity of certain of the townspeople and some who are alumni of Punched, the people who have sat in darkness in Punched Hall will see a great electric light at the graduation exercises June 23.

As the school owes its library, pictures,
apparatus, mineral and botanical cabinets,
casts, frescoing, one if not both of its pianos, to its graduates and interested friends, it seems especially fitting that there should be the personal element in the furnishing of this much needed improvement, adequate light.

May the day be not far distant when the Alumni Association shall have a sufficient sum to assure a yearly income
to the school, and when the school funds
shall be increased so that its needs may be met.

Poems by a P. A. Student.

In the days of light literature and spring poetry, it is a relief to come upon a book of verse of more serious character, the lines of which do more than merely satisfy the ear—lines pregnant
with classicism, stately in their rhythm,
graceful and happy in expression.

Such is the "Parthenon and Other Poems" by W. Lawrence Chamberlain, of Phillips Academy. The poems, as a whole, reveal a maturity of thought that is, usually, the accompaniment of greater years. The rhyme however is somewhat defective and the author seems to lack versatility in the use of meter save in the last poem—"The Passing of the Day"—a beautiful sylvan cantata.

The Shakers of Mount Lebanon, a community of simple, honest God-fearing men and women, have prepared the Shaker
Digestive Cordial for many years,
and it is always the same simple, honest,
curative medicine that has helped to make the Shakers the healthy, long lived people that they are. The Shakers never have indigestion. This is partly owing to their simple mode of life, partly to the wonderful properties of Shaker Digestive Cordial. Indigestion is caused by the stomach glands not supplying enough digestive juices. Shaker Digestive Cordial supplies what's wanting. Shaker Digestive Cordial invigorates the stomach and all its glands so that after while they don't need help. As evidence of the honesty of Shaker Digestive Cordial, the formula is printed on every bottle. Sold by druggists, price 10 cents to $1.00 per bottle.

FOR A NEW GYMNASIUM.

Efforts to Raise $50,000 for Dr. Bancroft's
Quarter Century Testimonial.

It may not be generally known that a special effort is being made to raise, if possible, before the end of this term,
which marks the 25th anniversary of Dr.
Bancroft's connection with Phillips
Academy, the remaining money needed
to build the Gymnasium.

One of the former graduates has pledged the sum of $20,000 on condition that $30,000 more is raised. $15,000 of this has already been given, including recent gifts from friends of the school in town, in sums varying from $5.00 to a pledge of $5,000, the gift of Mrs. Coburn.
Any others in town who have not been called upon, but who are benefitted by,
and interested in, the welfare and prosperity of the school, and who would like to give, are requested to send contributions or pledges to Prof. W. B. Graves.

Resolutions.

At a meeting of the Directors of the November Club of Andover, Mass., held Monday, June 6, 1898, the following resolutions were adopted:

WHEREAS: It has pleased our Heavenly Father, in his wisdom and love, to call into the joy of her Lord, our sister, Phi-lomena McKen, and whereas we are conscious that the November Club has by her death lost one of its wisest counselors, one of its best friends; therefore be it Resolved: That we remind ourselves of her worth and her good, but also the sense of our loss, but also the expression of our gratitude for all the constant inspiration of her faith and hope and charity. Long experience in the management of affairs and in the contact with others will make her not only wise but hopeful. Released from her duties as Principal of Abbot Academy, she used her increased leisure and her rich attainments for the good of the community in which she lived. In this generous giving we largely shared. As leader of the Art Department from the first, she placed it upon broad foundations, planning with a characteristic faith for the possibilities of the years to come. Believing firmly in the duty of self-development for the individual in order to the fullest service, she regarded the Club as a larger self with like responsibilities and powers.

Resolved: That her well rounded life, in its unflinching cheerfulness, in its never flagging zeal for progress, in its continuous power of achievement, has been and ever shall be an incentive to our individual and associate effort.

Resolved: That a copy of these resolutions be sent to Mr. Charles McKen Duren, with the assurance of our heartfelt sympathy; that copies be sent to the Abbot Courant and to the ANDOVER TOWNSMAN; and that they be entered upon the records of the November Club.

was very particular to have only the best to be

Obituary.

NATHAN F. ABBOTT.

Nathan F. Abbott died at his home on Highland road, Saturday, of heart disease, aged 70 years, 4 months, and 22 days. For some years he had suffered with a weakness of the heart. He appeared to be well a few moments before he passed away.

Mr. Abbott was born in Andover and had lived here all his life. He learned the machinist trade, but ill health prevented his following that trade. He had kept a farm for many years. He was a quiet man but was much interested in town affairs.

He leaves a wife, six daughters, Jennie S., Agnes, Florence L., Alice, Susan E., and Mrs. H. F. Chase, and two sons, Garfield and George. The funeral was held Monday afternoon in the vestry of the Old South church. The service was conducted by Rev. Frank R. Shipman. Burial was in the Old South cemetery.

ISABELLA BLAIR.

Mrs. Isabella Blair died Sunday night, May 26, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John S. Harris, 71 Essex street, aged 71 years and 7 months. She had not been ill long and it was only a short time ago, after many years of faithful service, that she gave up her employment in the Smith & Dove mills.

The funeral was held Wednesday, interment taking place in the Spring Grove cemetery.

MRS. ALICE (CHADWICK) WOLFENDEN.

Mrs. Alice Wolfenden, who had resided in Andover many years, died suddenly at her home on North Main street, Saturday night, May 21, aged 64 years and 6 months. Her body was removed Tuesday to her daughter's home in Reading, where the funeral took place.

Mrs. Wolfenden was a most estimable lady, beloved by many friends and neighbors. She had many relatives in Andover who, besides her husband, mourn her loss.

CHARLES M. MOULTON.

Charles M. Moulton, aged 54 years, dropped dead in his barn, just before midnight Tuesday night, of heart disease. Mr. Moulton had been in poor health for some time but was about the house as usual Tuesday and was apparently as well as he had been for some time. Deceased had lived in Andover for many years. He leaves a wife and several children. The funeral was held Thursday. Interment took place in the West Church Cemetery.

Woman's Relief Corps Entertainment.

Patriotism is never wanting in the good old town of Andover, and to-night offers an unusual opportunity for our citizens to display their old time liberality and love of duty to the cause of our country. Previous notice has been given of the entertainment in Odd Fellows Hall by the Woman's relief corps, for the benefit of the defenders of right, and all that goes to make our grand republic the hope of civilization, and Christianity.

Enlist in the service to-night, and thus remember the men of Bunker Hill, and also the men now marching on to another grand victory for freedom and the oppressed.

The entertainment will consist of readings, singing and instrumental music. Also an address will be given by Mr. L. G. Holt of Lawrence. After the entertainment cake and ice cream will be for sale.

Admission twenty-five cents. Children under fifteen, fifteen cents.

Waddell Given the Trophy.

L. D. Waddell, captain of the victorious Phillips Academy baseball nine, was awarded the Chase trophy at a school meeting Tuesday morning. W. C. Matthews, short stop, was a close second and G. G. Stephenson, the star pitcher, was third. The vote was taken after the chapel exercises and was announced at an adjourned meeting held at noon.

The trophy was offered to the player who should contribute most to the success of the team during the season, the decision to be made by the vote of the school.

Capt. Waddell received a big vote and Matthews did also. Stephenson was given a flattering vote. All the members of the nine received recognition by a scattering vote.

When the result was announced, Capt. Waddell received an ovation. Cheers rang out in old Phillips hall and there were several speeches eulogistic of the nine and its popular captain. Capt. Waddell has played on the school team four years. He filled the position of right field in '95 and '96, and since then he has caught. As captain of the team this year, Waddell has, by his fidelity and persistent loyalty, inspired the admiration of his men. In his playing Waddell is very cool and steady the team. He comes from Parsippany, N. J. He will enter Yale next fall.

RICHLI BRED JERSEYS

T. E. Proctor of Topsfield Makes Purchases at Hood Farm.

T. E. Proctor, who owns a farm near Topsfield, has recently purchased several valuable Jerseys from the famous Hood Farm at Lowell, which will be the foundation for a herd. His selections show that he is determined to have the best that can be secured. They are as follows:

Brown Bessie 4th of Hood Farm and Brown Bessie 10th of Hood Farm, both daughters of Brown Bessie's Son, a son of the great Brown Bessie and sire of 6 in the 14 lb. list. Also, Minty of Hood Farm, and Minty 3rd of Hood Farm, daughters of Mint, a double grandson of the great Combination 4388; Pedro's Fancy 2d of Hood Farm, Pedro's Fancy 4th of Hood Farm, test 14 lbs. 14 oz., Welcome's Jessie, Violet Denison 2d, Rydoo Pogs, Ida's St. Jeannette 2d, test 17 lbs. 4 1/2 oz., and Iowa Belle.

The great demand for stock from Hood Farm show that breeders everywhere are recognizing the superiority of the blood in the Hood Farm herd. The effect of distributing such stock throughout this and other states cannot fail to be to raise the standard of dairy products. Men who are determined to succeed in dairying are looking for the best there is in dairy stock and they find it at Hood Farm.

Few people have an idea of the magnitude and rapid growth of Electric Railway traffic in Eastern Massachusetts and Rhode Island. A few facts from Derah's Street Railway Guide, just issued, will surprise even those who are accustomed to take long rides in the electric cars. The number of miles operated by the Street Railways of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, included in Derah's Guide, is 1,308.26, out of a total mileage of 1,738.50 in both states. The number of passengers carried last year by the Street Railways included in the Guide, was 312,000,000. These facts indicate the need of a work of this kind, and in addition to the complete tables showing routes, rates of fare, distances, etc., the edition this year contains more than 160 pages of reading matter descriptive of all the principal points of interest along lines of the Street Railways. This matter will be found of great value to those who make excursions on the trolley trips in summer. The volume is of a convenient size for the pocket, and is handsomely illustrated with some 90 half-tone views of places of interest. The Author of the Guide has been connected with the West End Street Railway Company for the past nine years, and has made a special study of the Street Railways throughout New England.

The guide has the endorsement of the Massachusetts Street Railways of the State. It is published by Robert H. Derah, 115 Devonshire Street, Boston, and is for sale at all the principal Hotels, News Stands and Railway Stations. Price 15 cents.

Punchard Alumni Reception.

In order that the gathering in Punchard Hall, June 24, may prove a reunion of graduates of earlier years as well as more recent ones, the committee of arrangements have decided that the first half of the evening shall be spent in sociability, and we hope that the opportunity of meeting old and new friends will be improved to the utmost.

The last half of the evening, not later than half past nine o'clock, those who wish to dance will have an opportunity to do so to music furnished by the Penitential Orchestra of Haverhill.

A reception room will be fitted up down stairs so that those who wish can make use of it to see their friends and in these ways the congested condition of the hall may be in a measure relieved.

Mr. and Mrs. Goldsmith, Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin, and Mr. and Mrs. Shearer will welcome home Punchard's children, while Mrs. B. F. Smith, Miss Pond, and Miss Norris will act as matrons of the dance.

Refreshments in the shape of ice cream, cake and lemonade will be for sale during the whole evening.

Each member of the Alumni Association, who has paid his dues, is entitled to two tickets. Past members of the school may obtain two tickets by joining the Association, or may pay fifty cents apiece if they do not wish to join. Tickets may be had on application to Charles Shearer or to Charles B. Jenkins at Holt's store.

How To Visit New England.

Northern New England has within its borders every natural advantage for making it the great rendezvous for summer tourists and vacationists. No other section can offer such a variety of Lake, Mountain or Seashore resorts, and all of them within easy access from the busy cities of Connecticut, New York, Rhode Island and Massachusetts.

It is no haphazard method by which the visitors to this region are handled, but experienced managers exert every possible effort to make the tourist at home and comfortable in great well equipped and finely appointed hostleries. The table of the New England hotels is far and favorably known, and, in fact, the advantages offered by them are phenomenal.

The climate of the region whether at Seashore, Lake or Mountain is healthful to the extreme, and one wishing a real good vacation will find it in Northern New England.

The Railroad by which this great vacation is reached is the Boston & Maine, and the train service which is in effect over its line has no equal in the Eastern States. Express trains to the leading resorts are run at seasonable hours from Northern, Southern and Western points, and the Excursion Book and illustrated catalogue which the General Passenger Department of the Boston & Maine Railroad, Boston, sends free upon application, abounds in useful knowledge relating to the summer resorts of Northern New England.

Death.

In Andover, June 11, 1898, Nathan Foster Abbott. Aged 70 years 4 months and 22 days.

I was seriously afflicted with a cough for several years, and last fall had a more severe cough than ever before. I have used many remedies without receiving much relief, and being recommended to try a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, by a friend, who, knowing me to be a poor fellow, gave it to me. I tried it, and with the most gratifying results. The first bottle relieved me very much and the second bottle has absolutely cured me. I have not had as good health for twenty years. Respectfully, Mrs. MARY A. BLISS, Claremore, Ark. Sold by Arthur Bliss, Andover, C. H. Shattuck, Ballardvale.

Mr. McAvoy was a former member of the Hose Co. and this act is only one of the many showing the respect and high esteem with which he was held by his brother firemen.

Miss Mary Ellen Scott graduated last Tuesday from Miss Page's Kindergarten Normal School, Boston. The exercises took place in the Hancock School Hall and were witnessed by several people from the Vale. Miss Scott's natural talents and ability together with her industry will without fail bring her additional laurels and success in her chosen profession.

Alice Drisko the seven year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Drisko met with quite a severe accident last week Thursday. While standing in the back part of a wagon the horse suddenly started and she was thrown to the ground and striking on the back of her head, was quite severely hurt. While she has not fully recovered from the effects of the fall she is doing as well as could be expected under the circumstances.

Last Sunday evening there was a large audience gathered in the Congregational Church to listen to the annual Children's Day exercises by the Sunday School. The exercises were fully up to their customary high standard. While all the services were good, the exercises and singing by the smaller children merit special mention. Those present missed the much prized words of cheer and encouragement of Supt. William Shaw who was unavoidably absent, not having returned from his extended Southern trip.

Mr. P. Ketcham of Pike City, Cal., says: "During my brother's late sickness from sciatic rheumatism, Chamberlain's Pain Balm was the only remedy that gave him any relief." Many others have testified to the prompt relief from pain which this liniment affords. For sale by Arthur Bliss, Andover, C. H. Shattuck, Ballardvale.

Holt For Congress.

A Townsman reporter interviewed License Commissioner Lewis G. Holt Monday regarding the rumor that he would run for the republican nomination for congress this fall in opposition to Congressman Knox.

Regarding the matter Mr. Holt said: "Men came to me a month ago and suggested that I ought to run for congress. They said I had as much right to run as anybody and they expressed the opinion that if I could secure the nomination I would certainly be elected. They said I have no political enemies."

"I told them I would take the matter under consideration. I regard it as the chance of my life time and I have pretty much made up my mind to run. I have been urged to do so by many Grand Army men. A number of them have been to see me this morning about the matter and all express confidence in my success."

"There are 7000 veterans in the district and I guess I can get 6000 of them. When I go into a contest I go into work, and if I run, I shall make a strong fight."

Mr. Holt was asked if he had anything to say regarding the postoffice contest, and he replied that he knew nothing whatever about the result. He said that Mr. Knox had not given him or his friends the least inkling as to his intentions.

Knocked Down By Bicycle.

Miss Winifred Wade was knocked down by two bicyclists who collided at the corner of Broadway and Cedar street Saturday evening, and was quite severely hurt. She was crossing Cedar street as one rider attempted to turn the corner in front of another cyclist, who was proceeding along Broadway. Both bicyclists were riding rapidly and their machines came together with a crash. The riders were thrown and they struck Miss Wade.

Several of her teeth were knocked out, her cheek was cut and her arm and hip bruised. She was taken into Cronin's drug store and then conveyed to her home, 573 Broadway, where Dr. Hogan attended her. She is confined to her bed today. One of the bicyclists stopped to ascertain her injuries, but the other jumped on to his wheel and rode away.

PIANOS

Few people have the courage to buy a cheap piano after carefully examining a really fine one. A pretty casing is often designed to sell a poor musical instrument. These well known makes combine beauty outside and worth within. Among the first-class ones these three are the most popular—not low priced and inferior, but cheap for their superior quality. These pianos can be purchased from $300 to $400, according to size and case—quality just the same. We will rent you one of these famous instruments for three months delivered right in your home for $15. Medium grade pianos for $12. Cheap pianos for $10. If you decide the piano is all we claim for it and decide to purchase, the rent will be allowed as payment on your instrument.

Eczema! The Only Cure.

Eczema is more than a skin disease, and no skin remedies can cure it. The blood is unable to effect a cure, and their mineral mixtures are damaging to the most powerful constitution. The whole trouble is in the blood, and Swift's Specific is the only remedy which can reach such deep-seated blood diseases.

Eczema broke out on my daughter, and continued to spread until her head was entirely covered. She was treated by several good doctors, but grew worse, and the dreadful disease spread to her face. She was taken to two celebrated health springs, but received no benefit. Many patent medicines were taken, but without result, until we decided to try S. S. S., and by the time the first bottle was finished, her head began to heal. A dozen bottles cured her completely and left her skin perfectly smooth. She is now sixteen years old, and has a magnificent growth of hair. Not a sign of the dreadful disease has ever returned.

H. T. SHORE,
2704 Lucas Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

Don't expect local applications of soaps and salves to cure Eczema. They reach only the surface, while the disease comes from within. Swift's Specific

S.S.S. For the Blood

is the only cure and will reach the most obstinate case. It is far ahead of all similar remedies, because it cures cases which are beyond their reach. S. S. S. is purely vegetable, and is the only blood remedy guaranteed to contain no poisons, mercury or other mineral.

William C. Dolliber has leased a large tract of land in Gloucester to Newburyport parties, who will attempt to extract gold from the sea water.

Charles Freedman, 12 years old, of St. John, N. B., was found in Lynn, Saturday, without a cent. He told the Lynn police that his mother had given him a ticket to New York and $2 and told him to shuffle for himself.

Policeman Shannon of Haverhill yesterday recovered 270 pounds of lead which had been stolen from the water department. A large quantity of copper wire, which it is believed was stolen, was also secured. The property had been sold to junk dealers.

Dr. Charles W. Page, who recently resigned his position as superintendent of the Danvers lunatic asylum, after a most creditable administration of several years, has been elected to and accepted the position of superintendent of the institution at Middletown, Conn. He will assume his new duties about September 1.

Henry L. Knight, grocer of Manchester-by-the-sea, has been missing since Thursday noon. Searching parties have been at work since but no clew has been received. It is believed that he is demented, as this is the second time within two years that he has disappeared. His son says that his father has seemed despondent lately and not inclined to talk.

Thomas Hughes, aged 24, a resident of Amesbury, has been missing since last week, and as clothes were found on the banks of Lake Gardner, which were identified by Mr. Hughes as those of his own son, it is thought by many that the body of the young man lies at the bottom of the lake. The police unsuccessfully grappled for the body.

Arthur T. Crampsey of Salem, who enlisted in the navy at Portsmouth under the name of Arthur Kittredge, is confined in the hospital at Key West by injuries received in the bombardment of San Juan. Crampsey, or Kittredge, was on fighting "Bob Evans" ship, the Iowa, and was in a group of eight, two of whom were killed and six wounded by a bursting shell from the shore batteries.

If all signs do not fail, this will be a good mackerel year off the New England coast. Reports from the fishermen in Ipswich bay state that the bay is fairly teeming with large mackerel. What boats were around made good catches. Fares of cape shore fish sold at $1, a drop of $1 from the opening quotations. Several of the seiners believe this too low, and will pack and hold their fish for higher quotations.

A sneak thief robbed Mrs. Katherine Evans, of Salem of $8, all the money she had, Monday afternoon. The thief called at Mrs. Evans' house and asked about a vacant tenement next door. Mrs. Evans went to a neighbor to ask the name of the landlord of the vacant tenement and while she was gone the thief grabbed her pocket book and ran. Mrs. Evans is a widow with two children to support and her loss is a heavy one.

Clarence Murphy, the Salem bank embezzler, will not be released from the state prison on a writ of habeas corpus unless the full bench of the supreme court of the United States shall overrule the decision of Judge Barker, rendered in the supreme court last week. Judge Putnam had declined to grant the prayer for a writ of habeas corpus, on the ground that the proper course for the prisoner was by a writ of error in the state courts. An appeal was taken to the supreme court, where the decision of the circuit court was sustained. Murphy is under sentence of not less than 10 nor more than 15 years.

Some people are constantly troubled with pimples and boils, especially about the face and neck. The best remedy is a thorough course of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which expels all humors through the upper channels, and so makes the skin become soft, healthy and fair.

To secure an abundant growth of hair, use Hall's Hair Renewer, or, if possessing an abundance, it may be kept looking finely by using the Renewer occasionally.

ABSENT-MINDED MAN.

He Moved, but When He Tried to Find His House He Failed.

An absent-minded man moved to this city from a neighboring town last week. He and his wife staid at a hotel while they were finding a house, but his business prevented the man from doing his share of the house hunting, and the task fell, as it often does, upon the wife. She at last found a place which suited her and she took her husband to see it. It was satisfactory, and they came down town, he to go back to his business and she to attend to the moving of their goods from the railway car to the house. Her task was soon accomplished, and in a short time she had put away most of the things, settled a bedroom and got the kitchen and dining room in order. By 5:30 in the afternoon she and the new girl had the first dinner in the new flat all ready for the head of the house.

In the meantime the absent-minded husband was plodding through the work at his office. About the time that the plates were being put on the table at his home he began to feel the need of food, and he locked up his office and started for the street car. When he reached the street, he suddenly remembered that he had not noticed the address of his new residence. He stood on the corner a long while and tried to think what the name of the street was. He consulted the directory, but none of the street names was familiar—in fact, he had not been in the city long enough to know any of the streets by name except that on which his office was situated and the location of the hotel where he had staid temporarily. He looked aimlessly at the crowded street cars and envied the men and women who knew where their homes were. The pangs of hunger were increasing momentarily, but no suggestion of the locality of his home came to him.

His mind on that point was a perfect blank. He had even forgotten to notice in what style of building the flat was situated. Cursing his stupidity, he made his way to the hotel, ate his dinner in disgusted solitude and went to bed. In the meantime his wife was nearly frantic at his absence. Night having fallen, she was afraid to venture out, and she, too, went to bed alone and spent a sleepless night. In the morning she made her way down town, found the office and threw herself weeping into her husband's arms. That afternoon the man bought a map of the city and marked accurately upon it his place of residence, and then he had a hundred cards printed containing his house address.—Chicago Chronicle.

Children's Night.

Children's night was observed by the local grange Tuesday evening, and a season of unalloyed pleasure was afforded the children of all ages who were present. This evening is one of the many incidents in the social life of the organization, which is held in glad anticipation not only by the embryo seed growers of the community, but by many who are older. The children enjoy the event because it is especially designed for their pleasure, those more mature enjoy it because the little folks are happy.

The general work of the choir was good and the class work indicated interest and perseverance. Mrs. R. W. Walker, Miss Caroline Douglass, and Mrs. Tufts were deserving of the many compliments received for their efforts in training the children. The decorations were tasteful, the potted plants being arranged as a centre piece with out flowers and larger potted plants arranged on either side. The grouping of the flowers was done by Mrs. Jenness and Mrs. Lizzie Kennison. Playdon of Andover furnished the plants.

Our I's and....

....Other Eyes.

Our I's are just as strong as they were fifty years ago, when we have cause to use them. But we have less and less cause to praise ourselves, since others do the praising, and we are more than willing for you to see us through other eyes. This is how we look to S. F. Boyce, wholesale and retail druggist, Duluth, Minn., who after a quarter of a century of observation writes:

"I have sold Ayer's Sarsaparilla for more than 25 years, both at wholesale and retail, and have never heard anything but words of praise from my customers; not a single complaint has ever reached me. I believe Ayer's Sarsaparilla to be the best blood purifier, that has been introduced to the general public." This, from a man who has sold thousands of dozens of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, is strong testimony. But it only echoes popular sentiment the world over, which has, "Nothing but words of praise for Ayer's Sarsaparilla."

Any doubt about it? Send for "Curebook." It kills doubts and cures doubters. Address J. C. AYER CO., Lowell, Mass.

Eckman of Lowell, united in marriage Miss Selma Person, daughter of John and Mary (Benson) Person of Main and School Streets, and Ivar S. Borg, overseer of the dyeing department of Stevens mill, the ceremony taking place Wednesday evening at six o'clock. The bride was attired in an elegant creation of white muslin, tastefully trimmed. She wore a veil and carried a bouquet of bride's roses. She was attended by her younger sister, Miss Mathilde Person, who was also robed in a charming costume of white. Todor S. Borg, a brother of the groom, acted as groomsmen. A brief reception was supplemented by wedding refreshments. Showered with rice and the usual though uncomfortable omens of good luck, the couple departed for a brief wedding trip. On their return, for the present, Mr. and Mrs. Borg will make their home at the residence of Fred Marvin on High and Sutton Streets. Many useful and valuable gifts were bestowed upon the bride.
